4.40 meters.

At the Barcelona Athletics Meeting in August 2011, he set a new record for the competition by jumping 4.66 metres. Shortly afterwards, he achieved a great result at the 2011 World Athletics Championships in Daegu (Daegu World Athletics Championships), South Korea, when he jumped 4.70 metres, a national record for Cuba, good for a fifth place.

In September at the Berlin Athletics Meeting, she finished second after not being able to jump 4.71 meters. The most important result of that year was first place at the XVI Pan American Games Guadalajara 2011, Mexico with a jump of 4.75 meters, beating world champion Fabiana Murer, setting a new Cuban record and a Pan American record. On February 17, 2012, she won the gold medal at the International Meeting of Stabhochsprung, in Potsdam, Germany with a jump of 4.70 meters in her first indoor raid. On May 17, he won the gold medal at the Sao Paulo Athletics Grand Prix, Brazil, with a 4.65-meter record for the tournament. On that occasion he beat Fabiana Murer for the second time. Ten days later she won the Havana Athletics Meeting, held at the Pan American Stadium in Havana in greeting the IAAF centennial, with a modest record of 6.40 meters.

Sao Paulo Grand Prix

In the sixth stop of the Diamond League held on June 9 in New York was placed in second place with a jump of 4.70 meters. One month later, on July 20, in the ninth stop in Monaco, she finished second again with a jump of 4.62 meters.

On August 6, 2012, the main result of her athletic career came when she won the silver medal at the London 2012 Olympic Games, with a record of 4.75, the same as the champion, Jennifer Suhr. Interviewed after the competition she said: "I am very happy to have achieved my dream. This medal, apart from my family and friends, is one of the most beautiful things that has happened to me. And I really feel very proud" (...)

Eleven days later she won the gold medal in the tenth round of the Swedish Diamond League in Stockholm. In this tournament, it took just one jump to beat the 4.70m mark and beat Germany's Silke Spiegelburg, who finished second at 4.55. On Sunday, August 26, she won the silver medal in the twelfth stop in Birmingham, United Kingdom. There she showed stability in the jumps and flew over the rod at the height of 4.65 meters, but was ahead by Olympic champion Jennifer Suhr, who got the same record in fewer attempts.

At the end of the year she was chosen among the most outstanding athletes of the year in Cuba in the annual survey of INDER and the UPEC Circle of Sports Journalists. She was also selected as the best athlete in individual sports in her native province, Pinar del Río.

The 2013 season began on February 9, 2013, winning with a Cuban record and a personal best of 4.76 meters at the Pole Vault Festival in the city of Donetsk, Ukraine, a tournament held in homage to the legendary pole vaulter Sergey Bubka. In the competition he beat Russia's Anastasia Savchenko (4.65) and Greece's Nikoleta Kiriakopoulou (4.60). On Saturday 16 February she won the Birmingham Grand Prix silver medal in Great Britain with a jump of 4.70 metres, the same record as the winner Holly Bleasdale.

Five days later she jumped over 4.78m at the XL Galan in Stockholm, Sweden, and not only won the gold medal, but also set a new national record for Cuba and top record for the indoor season. On March 16, 2013, at the 2013 Cuban Athletics Cup, held at the Pan American Stadium in Havana, she won by jumping 4.81 meters, a new personal and national height. On April 24, 2013, she broke the national record again by jumping 4.82 meters and winning the gold medal at the Pole Vault in the Mall in Des Moines, Iowa, in the United States. Just one day later, she confirmed herself at the top of the outdoor world ranking by passing over 4.85 meters in just one attempt to dominate Iowa's iconic Drake Relays, surpassing his own national and personal record by three centimeters.

On May 26, she won the bronze medal in the third stop of the Diamond League held in New York, United States, with the same mark as Fabiana Murer, a modest 4.53.

On June 8 in Hengelo, Holland, home of the Fanny Blankers-Koen Games, she jumped for the first time in her 4.90-meter run after missing twice over 4.05. Her performance in this fight reaffirmed her at the top of that year's ranking as owner of the top three records: 4.90, 4.85 and 4.81. These records also placed her among the three best pole vaulters of all time, only surpassed by Russia's Yelena Isinbayeva (5.06) and U.S. Jennifer Suhr (4.92).

After this great result she competed in the Athletic Meeting Paavo Nurmi, in Finland, where surprisingly she could not pass the 4.25 meters in the pole vault. However, she recovered quickly at Sainsbury's Grand Prix in Birmingham, United Kingdom, where she was crowned when she jumped 4.73 meters.

On July 8th she won gold by dominating the Meeting de Sotteville les Rouen, in France, after surpassing 4.50 metres in her second attempt and renouncing 4.60 metres, the Olympic runner-up scored 4.70 in the last possibility and was ahead of the American Mari Saxer (4.60) and the Irish Tori Pena (4.50). This triumph was her fourth outdoor crowning in seven international appearances.

On July 17, she reached the gold medal again with an excellent 4.81 meters, in the Athletic Meeting of Lucerne, Switzerland which placed her as the most stable elite pole vaulter of the moment, becoming the new record holder of the contest, as she erased the 4.70 shown since 2008 by the Brazilian world champion Fabiana Murer.

On July 26 in the Diamond League in London, the pole vaulter won with 4.83 meters in the eleventh stage of a series that dominates with nine stripes, becoming the solitary leader of the ranking of this event, with this performance she reached five jumps over 4.81 meters to confirm herself as the only one that this year has surpassed that mark outdoors.
